So it is with a man who uses printing, whether it be Dodgers, Circulars, Cards, Stationery, Advertising Matter, or anything of the kind, if it looks slipshod, not well arranged and not generally attractive. Each time such printing is presented to a prospective customer, the impression made upon him is not in your favor.

On the other hand, if the printing is neat and tasteful and accurate, the good impression left is just what you are after, and the impression thus made stays with the reader long after you have forgotten the circular or card on which a conscientious printer has given you the benefit of expert thought, gained by years of experience, and expressed through the medium of the latest types, ornaments and borders.

AT THE ACADEMY TO-NIGHT.

"TRILBY"

"Trilby," the most successful play written in fifty years, which is now the reigning success in New York and Chicago, will be at the Academy of Music to-night. This will be the only visit here, as the great company playing "Trilby" is to make an extended tour throughout the Western cities in September. All the beautiful scenery, costumes and original music will be brought direct from New York and the company will be under the direction of William A. Brady. There was no difference of opinion among the members of a large audience gathered together to witness the first representation on the stage of Du Maurier's famous novel. The favorable verdict was unanimous. The play "Trilby" is a grand success and will become as popular as the novel. The attention of the audience was won at the beginning and the interest kept up to the end. Mr. Potter has made a play that fairly teems with action and dramatic effect. Every situation is reasonable and natural. There are no anticlimaxes, no repetition, no theatrical devices, and the development of the story is logical and consistent at all times. A company of admirable players has been brought together by Manager Palmer for the interpretation of "Trilby." Every role is taken by a competent person and there is an attention to minor details that is most commendable. Manager Hooper feels very much gratified at the very large sale of seats, and from the present outlook the house will be packed. There are some choice seats still left and some of the boxes, which he would like to dispose of this morning.

The Novelty of the Age.

"The Span of Life" which will be seen at the Academy of Music Wednesday, September 25, is an English melodrama that promises to be very exciting. It comes to us with the prestige of success endorsed by four continents, where it is now playing to the capacity of the various houses. The scene is laid in England and Africa, and the story tells of the persecution of a young woman and her lover, by the woman's cousin, whose desire to get possession of her fortune leads him into all sorts of villainy. The action begins in Devonshire, with unsuccessful attempts to bring about the ruin of the hero, Richard Blunt, followed by an unsuccessful attempt on his life. From England the scene shifts to Africa, where after seven years, the hero and heroine, now married, are found with a party of friends, Blunt having found a gold and diamond belt. Dunstan Leach, the villain, appears in the role of a slave trader at the head of a band of Arabs, and he succeeds in capturing his wife and child. Through a piece of strategy they are released by the hero and pursued by the Arabs. Finding that a bridge over a gorge has been removed, with no other means to escape upon, they are preparing to kill themselves, when their friends from the opposite side throw themselves across the gorge and formed a human bridge. It is from this scene that the play takes its name.

The day after "The Span of Life" appeared in New York City the Herald called it "one of the cleverest and most exciting melodramas seen here in many moons."

"The Limited Mail."

All who see this great sensational play will witness an event surpassing anything of the kind ever seen in this city. The play bristles with thrilling sensations and interesting episodes, and is a drama that should be seen by young and old. It is a play dealing with life on the railroad, and written and dramatized by a life long railroad man, Elmer E. Vance, for many years train dispatcher and right telegraph operator at the Union depot, Columbus, Ohio. Consequently, every detail may be counted on as absolutely correct. The "star" if any particular one among a bright constellation of stars may be mentioned, is the wonderful Boazrice, whose artistic acting, graceful dancing and charming singing will prove a revelation. At the Academy of Music Saturday, September 28.
